1. Goat rearing

Goat rearing has emerged as source of employment and income generation for small, marginal and landless farmers, particularly SC/ST households. JEEViKA is implementing different interventions under goat rearing.

i. Pashu Sakhi Model

Under this model, Pashu Sakhi, an SHG member having experience in goat rearing is further trained on goat rearing practices and provides services to SHG members in goat rearing. The Pashu Sakhi supports SHG members in the procurement of goats, training of SHG members on feed management (by the installation of goat feeder, enhance nutrition by the inclusion of azolla in their diet, preparation and consumption of dana mishran, proper feeding practices) and construction of low-cost houses for goats.

These Pashu Sakhis also provide veterinary services for immunization/vaccination against diseases, castration, insemination, deworming etc. Pashu Sakhi also provides marketing facility by organizing goat haats and better price realization during the sale of goats.

The project, till September 2021, has developed around 2399 Pashu Sakhis who provided services to SHG households.
